

Life Rewards

You have been working with your dog for some time and your dog is happy to work and be rewarded with treats. Your dog knows very well the basic behaviors that you want to use. It is now time to include life rewards in your training. Gradually life rewards can be used as another incentive for the behavior you want.

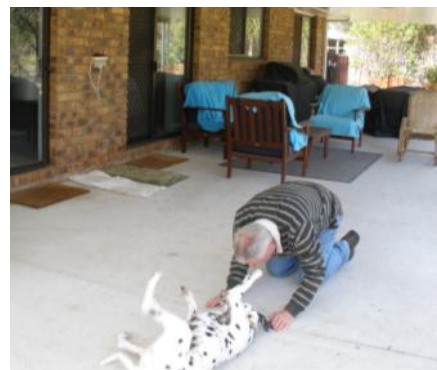

What Is A Life Reward?

A life reward is anything that your dog likes or wants at a particular time.

Here are some examples. Remember they are only limited by our imagination

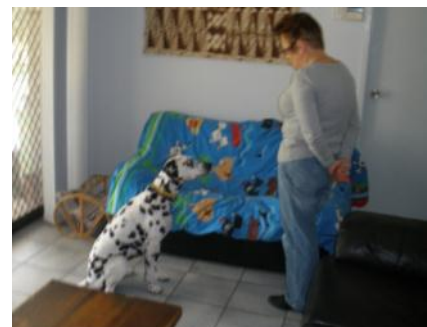

A tugging game. Always remember to swap the toy for a yummy treat

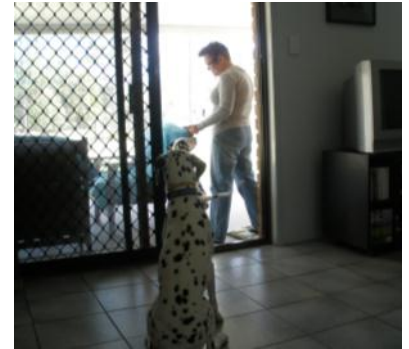

Playing like a dog with your dog.

Playing a follow me game.

Wait in a sit till invited up on a comfortable piece of furniture.

Dogs wait at the door for you to go out first. Then they are released outside to explore the world.

Dogs can be rewarded by waiting for you to invite them into and out of the car..
